KAYIZEN
KOMPANI LLC

For several years, our company has consistently exported high-quality licorice to major international markets. Currently, our products are supplied to China, Korea, India, Pakistan, Egypt, European countries, and the United States. We also operate a permanent warehouse in China.

The company adheres to strict quality standards, ensuring that its products meet international market requirements and supporting long-term partnerships with overseas counterparts.

The products are supplied in professional export-grade packaging that ensures safety, hygiene, and storage stability.

The licorice root is packed in a high-quality transparent laminated bag, allowing visual inspection of the contents while protecting them from moisture, dust, and external contaminants. The packaging is hermetically sealed and equipped with a zip-lock closure, preserving freshness after opening and ensuring convenient use

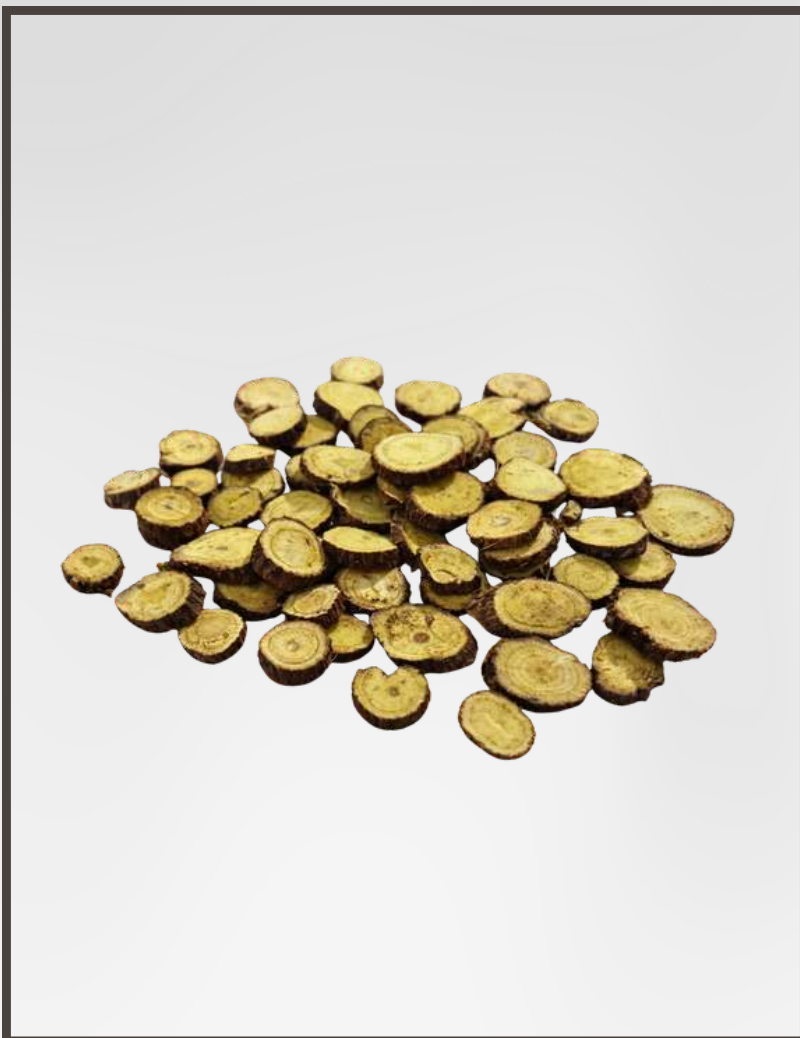

The front side of the package displays key product information, including the product name, net weight, batch details, and manufacturer information. It also features GMP marking and confirmation of compliance with international manufacturing standards.

The back side provides detailed product information, storage recommendations, safety precautions, and the manufacturer's contact details.

These images present various forms of processing and supply of licorice root, as well as the stages of its preparation.

The raw material undergoes careful selection and sorting. The roots are cleaned, graded, and, if required, cut according to the customer's specifications. Supply is available in whole root, crushed, or sliced forms.

The company maintains quality control at every stage — from harvesting to shipment — ensuring compliance with international standards and export market requirements.
